

Coldwell retires from New Minas plant after 43 years at helm

Coldwell says the addition of several other ready mix plants in the Valley area contributed to the productivity declines in the New Minas operation. "There's still lots of growth and demand for concrete in the Annapolis Valley region, but now there are several operations to meet the demand."

Over the years Coldwell has seen many changes in the industry, both in technology and business operations.

"Everything seems harder now, more complicated," he says.

"I'm enjoying my retirement. I'm working my woodlot a few hours every day. It's nice and quiet, and I have no worries!"

The only downside of retirement? "I still wake up early every morning, and during the winter months there's no place to go."
